

Here Comes Ice Cream

Nothing says summer like the tinkling tunes of the neighborhood ice cream truck, instantly making mouths water for a frozen treat.

Ice cream vendors have been peddling cold concoctions on city streets since the 1800s, announcing their presence with bells, harmonicas, barrel organs or their own singing voices.

In the 1920s, motorized trucks began to replace pushcarts and wagons, but drivers still relied on bells to advertise their frosty offerings. Weary of manually clanging the bells all day, some vendors strapped music boxes to their vehicles, blasting out folk songs such as “Turkey in the Straw,” “The Entertainer” and “Pop Goes the Weasel.”

The music was a marketing success, creating a need for electronic music boxes made for ice cream trucks. As the industry took off in the 1950s, data showed that trucks with music boxes sold twice as much ice cream as those with bells.

Nowadays, ice cream trucks continue to crank out old-fashioned tunes, enticing customers with nostalgia and, of course, tasty treats.

A Playlist for Pops

This Father’s Day, press play on these sweet songs that celebrate the bond between dads and their children.

“Color Him Father”: A top 10 hit for R&B group the Winstons, this upbeat track from 1969 sings the praises of a kind, hardworking stepfather to a widow’s seven children.

“Father and Son”: When listening to this 1970 Cat Stevens song, note when the singer-songwriter is singing in a lower register and when he goes up an octave. The deep verses are the father’s side of the conversation, and the higher verses are the son’s response.

“Daddy’s Hands”: Country singer Holly Dunn wrote this sweet tribute as a Father’s Day gift for her dad. Released in 1986, it spent six months on the country charts and made Dunn a Nashville star.

Judy Garland’s Greatest Films

On Judy Garland’s 100th birthday on June 10, celebrate her talent and legacy by watching one of her many beloved movies:

“The Wizard of Oz” (1939) — It’s the film that made Garland a star and features her most iconic role, that of Kansas farm girl Dorothy Gale, who travels over the rainbow to the land of Oz, making whimsical friends along the way.

“For Me and My Gal” (1942) — This musical marked Garland’s first steps into more mature roles, casting her as a vaudeville performer alongside Gene Kelly in his screen debut.

“Meet Me in St. Louis” (1944) — This warm, sentimental film about the close-knit Smith family has become a holiday classic. Garland named the musical as one of her favorites, and she shines as the family’s kind, protective teen daughter.

“A Star Is Born” (1954) — Garland earned a best actress Oscar nomination for her turn as a rising starlet married to a devoted, yet troubled, former actor.
